Outage Compensation Policy (v3, April 2026)

1. Purpose. This policy explains when a residential customer receives a bill credit because their supply was interrupted.

2. Who qualifies. Residential customers whose supply is interrupted for more than 12 continuous hours because of a fault on our network.

3. What is excluded. Planned maintenance that was announced at least 48 hours in advance does not qualify. Interruptions caused inside the customer's own premises do not qualify.

Outage Compensation Policy (v3, April 2026)

4. How much. A credit of 10 dollars for every full hour beyond the first 12 hours, up to a maximum of 200 dollars per interruption.

5. How to claim. The customer must claim within 30 days of the interruption, quoting their account number. Credits are applied to the next bill.

6. Approval. Every credit must be approved by a customer service supervisor. Call center agents and automated systems may recommend a credit but cannot approve it.

7. Medical priority. Customers registered for medical equipment are restored first where possible and receive a call from the supervisor during long interruptions.
